

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

- According to a method of managing photographing conditions for an image sensing apparatus, one of images photographed by the image sensing apparatus is selected.
- 5 The selected image, photographing conditions such as the exposure value and shutter speed in photographing the image, and a separately input photographing status such as the photographing place are stored in association with each other.